

as you can see both are worthy of a presentation both very different and it might be that the school in need of improvement uses the Open Court k-3 and Wonders 4-6 and the other schools use Wonders k-6 There are many options on the plate Carol

The new OCR below.

Name of program & publisher Open Court Reading McGraw-Hill Education

How you heard about it/Who else is using it Used in large district, such as Detroit Public and Philadelphia public. The program has been around for fifty years and rests on a steady and impressive amount of research, history, and efficacy

Level (I.e., K-3, K-5, etc.) K-3

Key components it has (I.e., student anthology, leveled books, computer aspects, consumables, etc.) Attached is the a list of components by grade

Any outside research to verify its effectiveness McRae Study on the Microsite Research and Success Page (http://opencourtreading.com/research_and_success/)

Publisher-provided research to verify its effectiveness All research(whitepapers and success stories on the Research and Success Page above http://opencourtreading.com/research_and_success/)

What research-based does the publisher claim for it design Look to the white papers on the microsite http://opencourtreading.com/research_and_success/